re: Lehman/Chase Bank matter

Gentlemen:

while you continue to rant and rave you might wish to review exhibit #4 filed in 2008 and discover that there is on deposit with the state comptroller's office something from the 'debtor' which is an all together different kettle of fish so to speak than the grand union bonds...

i provide this in order to allow you to really really think this thru before going forward < a copy of this will be provided in my reply to your papers > assuming they ever get to me as you may not aware, i was in her honors courtroom for monday and tuesday and was prepared to offer in open court a stipulation which, if accepted would have allowed the funds to be deposited into the court registry but then came the fire alarm

thanx

bill kuntz

ps i asked you to send some papers to mr reeder? did you do that or ignore it?

it may well be that the state comptroller's office may be substituted for me in this request based upon the exact nature of what is there and as i advised the last i looked it was purged it does pay to do your homework?
